Forecast for Sunday 12 Sep 2021

Weather: Cloudy start to Sunday with any drizzle at first soon dying out, then a dry day in most areas and becoming brighter with sunny spells developing. There is just a small chance of a light afternoon shower.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 30% mainly south of area at first, improving 70% by afternoon.

Visibility: Poor in north and east of area at first with clouds well down the hills. Otherwise the air during the day will have great clarity resulting in very good visibility as clouds gradually lift above many of the tops and breaking up.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View
An improving day in the hills with clouds lifting and breaking up allowing some fine views from higher ridges and summits. Winds also easing down in the morning however colder air on the tops with even a light breeze will make it feel chilly.

Forecast for Monday 13 Sep 2021
Weather: It will be a dry and bright day with plenty of sunshine during the morning then clouding over in the afternoon. A chilly start in the glens with even a few fog patches, gradually dispersing.

Maximum wind: Light winds at first but winds picking up from a southerly direction in the afternoon. Average speeds on the tops increasing to 20mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80%

Visibility: Some patches of poor visibility at lower levels at first. Otherwise very good visibility with patchy cloud cover around 700 to 800m.

Temperature: Glens: 4 Celsius rising to 17 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 7 Celsius.
Freezing level: Staying above the tops.
